PRESIDENT TO SEE SUBMARINE'S STUNTS AT OYSTER BAY.

"The Sun's" Report About the Bost Confirmed -Rosevelt Wants to Encourage Valor in the Navy-Senator Lodge, Just Home, Summoned to Segamore Hill.

OYSTER BAY, Aug. 12 .- The President's special train which carried him to Wilkesbarre and Chautauqua, arrived at the Erie station in Jersey City at 3 o'clock this morning, personally conducted by President Underwood of the Erie, whose private car was part of the train from Lakewood. The train stood on a side track. Breakfast was served on board and at 8 o'clock the President and his party boarded the Pennsylvania tug Lancaster and pro-ceeded to Long Island City, where a special train was awaiting him. He reached oyster Bay at 9.55 this morning.

A batch of accumulated correspondence was brought to the President in Long Island City, and all the way to Oyster Bay, he and Acting Secretary Barnes were busy with it. The President said he felt no fatigue at all after spending two nights on the cars and delivering a dozen speeches en route.

THE SUN'S report that the submarine boat Plunger was coming to Oyster Bay for the President's inspection was con-firmed to-day officially. She is due to arrive here some time within the week. The President will examine the Plunger thoroughly and then he will watch her plungings and risings and all the stunts she is capable of from the deck of the yacht Sylph, commanded by Lieut. F. T. Evans, who is himself interested in submarine

The reason the President has had these

The reason the President has had these tests of the Plunger arranged is because he desires to promote an interest in submarines. But he desires still more to encourage in the navy valor and daring of just the sort required in the use of the submarine. The President firmly believes that nothing can be done by a navy in war which it has not practised in peace.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, who landed from the steamship Cedric this afternoon, started at once for Oyster Bay for a conference with President Roosevelt. A message from the President asking the Senator to come at once was waiting for him when the Cedric got in. He arrived here on the 7:38 train. He will leave to-morrow morning. The Senator said his prolonged trip abroad had no public significance.

"I went," he said, "purely for pleasure and recreation, and I wanted to see the President before going home to see my children."

It is known, however, that while abroad the Senator had interviews with Lord Lansdowne, the British Minister for Foreign Affairs, as well as with Rouvier, the French

NEWPORT'S FINE LAWN FETE. Seciety Women Make $10,000 With Which

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 12.-The lawn fête given this afternoon by society women for the benefit of the Newport Tubercu-losis Society was the most elaborate affair of the kind ever given here, and it is expected that as a result of the fête more than $10,000 will be realized for the association. The fête was on the lawn of the F. W. Vanderbilt place, which had been trans-

She and her assistants sold animals, birds and goldfish, while next to Mrs. Fish's booth was a shed under which stood a pony and cart offered by Mrs. Hermann-Oelrichs for raffle. This work was

The novelty of the fête was the dairy of Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt. It was in a rustic inclosure and a bevy of society girls dressed as dairymaids dispensed products of the farm.

A large exhibit was that of the army and navy, composed of tents in front of which were stacks of arms and saluting cannon, with sailors, marines and troops from Fort Adams, the latter doing patrol duty along the cliff side of the estate.

Whitman Barely Escapes Arrest at Jefferson Market Police Court

When Magistrate Whitman entered the Jefferson Market police court yesterday to begin his tour of duty there, he was stopped at the gate by Policeman McLane. Let me pass," said Magistrate Whitman "Who are you?" asked the policeman. "I'm the Magistrate," answered Mr.

Whitman. "I'm afraid you're a liar," said the policeman, "and if you don't clear out I'll have you arrested."
"I tell you I'm the Magistrate," reiterated

"Thomas, put this man under arrest," said McLane to one of the court squad. Thomas put his hand heavily on the Magistrate's shoulder.

"Don't you know me?" asked the Magis-

LIQUOR QUESTION AT ASBURY. Ministers Say They Are Not for High Lices

ASBUST PARK, N. J.; Aug. 12.-The Asbury Park ministers issued a joint protest against high license to-day. They had been quoted a few days ago as being in favor of the project. They deny that they expressed the sentiments attributed to them. They say that any attempt to make this radical change in the policy of Asbury Park should be characterized by due deliberation and consideration. For this reason they assert that the election on Friday provided for by the City Council will not be a true expression of the sentiment of the community.

The letter has dampened the spirits of the high license contingent, who up to to-day believed the ministers were for the measure. The election next Friday is likely to be hotly contested. against high license to-day. They had

LIVE TOPICS ABOUT TOWN.

It does not often fall to the lot of one man to be a grandfather and a grandson at the same time. Such, however, is the good fortune of John Paul, Jr., who is the chief steward of Louis F. Haffen's Jefferson Dem-

Mr. Paul's grandmother, Mrs. Bastian, is living at 157th street and Elton avenue, hale and hearty, in her ninety-seventh year. Her son-in-law, John Paul, Sr., lives at the same address, and at 78 is conlives at the same address, and at 78 is considered good for a good many more years. His son, John Paul, Jr., is now 46 years old. John, Jr.'s first daughter to be married is now the wife of Elwood Sypher, and lives with her husband at 781 Elton avenue, where now, in sight of Grandfather Paul's grandmother's own home, she has just brought into the world a healthy little girl baby.

As soon as this baby is old enough to talk it will be able to enjoy the rare experience of saluting its great, great grandma.

Though St. Thomas's Church is in ruins, the fire has not driven from the tower for good the pigeons that have for years made On the afternoon of the fire they seemed as much at home as ever above the belfry, in spite of the fact that the ruins of other men were at work tearing down dangerous walls.

A parrot on the fourth floor of a building in Fifth avenue near Twenty-third street each day scares hundreds of persons by creaming like a child in danger. The mounted cops and traffic men are about the only ones who are immune. Just when passing vehicles seem thickest and the number of pedestrians greatest Polly sets up yells that cause the blood of the average person to run cold. Cabmen rein in their horses, chauffeurs put on brakes, and even callous truck drivers look around to see if they have killed any one.

An elderly man sat on the front seat of a northbound Broadway car, glancing first to one side of the street, then to the other. At Twenty-fourth street he signaled to the conductor to stop.

the conductor to stop.

"See that man?" asked the conductor after the car had started again. "Well, he ridee up and down Broadway many times each day. He never goes further up than Fifty-ninth street, though on south bound trips he usually reaches the Battery. Every time he sees any one he knows he gets of the car, shakes hands and gets aboard again to continue his trip. He starts downtown from near Forty-second street about 11 o'clook every day when it is not raining and rides until dinner time."

"What a comfort the exchange system is," exclaimed one woman shopper to a friend she met in the elevator of a big department store. "Yesterday I bought a hat which I didn't like after I got it home, so to-day I brought it back and got three pounds of butter and a mousetrap for it.

On the Hudson River day boat the other day a young girl caused amusement by her determined endeavors to acquire a coat of tan in one day. She sat on the hurricane deck, hatless, holding back her head and lifting her face to the suh's rays head and lirting her face to the suh's rays, much as a chicken lifts up its head when taking a drink. Every few minutes she would go below and wet her handkerchief. Then with this she would moisten her face and let the wind and sun dry it off. She worked harder in a day for that coat of tan then the average person does all summer, and she didn't care who knew it.

This is harvest time for impostors in and out of the city who pose as divinity students to book subscriptions to religious periodicals. Some of these schemers are veteran canvassers, while others are outright swindlers, who do not intend ever to deliver anything. All generally employ the vacation story "trying to accumulate a few dollars in order to further my education."

On Broadway, not far from its most flaming district, there dwells a tobacconist who brings to his trade all the love of an artist. He has been in business thirty years or more, and during that time be has collected everything appertaining to smoking one could imagine. The discerning visitor will recognize cigars, cigcerning visitor will recognize cigars, cigarettes and tobacco from almost every place on the globe. Long forgotten brands will be found within reach. Strange, wither and of mixtures occupy his shelves. Pipes of bewildering shape and not less confusing history are displayed. Igniting contrivances, from the old time flint and tinder box dows to modern electrical inventions, form part of the proprietor's possessions. But one of his most curious collections is an array of receptacies containing cigar tips accumulated during the years he has been in business.

IN SOCIETY.

Though there are still two crowded Sundays ahead for the summer resorts, the town begins to wear an aspect of the early autumn season. The leading hotels are autumn season. The leading hotels are filled with visitors from other cities who are convinced that New York is the most amusing of all summer places. There is the usual difficulty to find tables at the fashionable restaurants, where one sees constantly those who are reported as located at Newport, Bar Harbor or elsewhere. Among others here during the week were Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton McK. Twombly, who are at the St. Regis. Mrs. Clarence Mackay came from Saratoga for a brief visit. Mrs. John E. Parsons was down from Lenox to welcome her son, David Woife Bishop, on his arrival from Europe, he having been absent for two years.

Among others sailing next Friday from Europe for home are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould and their sons, who will go direct to their country place at Ardsley. Louis T. Hoyt will sail for this side on Tuesday, Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Chappell will sail from England for New York on Wednesday. Miss Helen Brice, daughter of the late Senator Calvin S. Brice, will remain abroad until October. Her sister, Miss Kate Brice, arrived during the past week.

Arthur Remmington Robert and his mother, Mrs. Christopher R. Robert, have lived abroad for the last eight or ten years. and consequently news of the approaching immediate marriage of Mr. Robert with Miss Maud Ann Sullivan, daughter of the late Sir Edward Sullivan, is only of incidental interest here. Mrs. Robert used to be as prominent in the summer social life of Newport as Mrs. James P. Kernochan. A brother of the bridegroom married a Miss Katherine Cheape, of England, a daughter of Col. Cheape, and the couple were one season at Newport. This was before the death of his father.

Martin Malone Phad Cardinal Gibbons as his week's end givest over last Sunday at his great establishment at Spring Lake, J., called Ballingary. On the previous day, Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Maloney and their daughter, Mrs. Carbesry Ritchie, gave an afternoon reception for the Cardina. The Cardinal preached in the beautiful memorial chapel erected by Mr. Maloney to his daughter Catherine. About twice as many persons tried to attend the services as the edifice would hold.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drezel are visiting relatives at their country place in Pennsylvania. Mr. Drexel's sister-in-lew. Mrs. John R. Drexel, has done some entertaining during the past week for her guest, taining during the past week for her guest, Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, wife of the American Minister to Belgium. Mrs. Townsend, who recently arrived from Brussels, was in New York with her husband for a time last winter and was seen at the Metropolitan Opera House with Mrs. Astor. She is regarded as a particularly interesting woman and visits Queen Alexandra in friendly fashion at Sandringham.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor are at Friedham, Mrs. Theodore Havemeyer's cottage at Newport, for the time being. Mrs. Astor was with her father, Edward S. Willing, at his cottage immediately after her arrival. Mr. Willing has with him this summer his son, J. Barton Willing, and his widowed daughter, Mrs. Lawrence. Alice Astor, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Astor's little girl, has also been at the cottage since her father went to England. The arrival of the Astors gave a filip to the galeties which had been decidedly conspicuous by their Foxhall Keepe has been going about for some days at Saratoga on crutches owing to a strained ligament. It has been said of him time and again that he has broken every bone in his body, and these it seems are easier mended than sprains are adjusted.

Mr. Keene is housekeeping this summer with his friend H. De Courcey Forbes, and when they are not guests at other parsons' dinners at the clubhouse they are giving dinners themselves. J. R. Keene is putting up with his son.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorillard Ronalds of New York are touring the French resorts. Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould and family have gone to Scotland for the grouse hunting. Lewis S. Thompson is about to sail to par-tiopate in this also. Mr. and Mrs. Archi-bald Rogers and family will soon leave Lon-don for Scotland for the shooting season.

Major and Mrs. William Boeram Wetmore are entertaining a week end party at their Allenhurm, N. J., residence. Some of the rooms in this are particularly fine. The mahogany dining room furniture came to Major Wetmore from his grandparents and $20,000 was expended in the fittings of this room, including the beamed ceiting and high wainscoting topped with tages.
